Peripole-Bergerault Orff Instruments

TRADITION

Founded by instrumental and mechanical genius, Albert Bergerault in 1932, Bergerault has continued in France for three generations, each training the next.

EXPERTISE

Expertise cannot be taught, it must be learned by experience. From the selection of rosewood for optimum physical properties for sound production, to tuning, to bar dimensions and style, Bergerault has painstakingly explored and found the techniques needed to construct great instruments. These techniques are present in their world-renowned mallet percussion instruments as well as their Orff Instruments.

QUALITY

From the chromed steel bars on our glockenspiels (other brands are either raw steel, nickel-plated or aluminum) to the individually pitched-resonator tubes and intrinsic stands of our Chromatic Orff Instruments, to the superior rosewood quality and larger dimensions selected for our products, Peripole-Bergerault® Orff Instruments have multiple features not found in other brands of Orff Instruments.

- ◆ Extra Wide Aged Rosewood Xylophone and Contra Bass Bars, provides accuracy of pitch in humid weather
- ◆ Bergerault® Techlon composite bars, closest sound to Rosewood
- ◆ Extra Wide Bell Aluminum Alloy Metallophone Bars
- ◆ Extra Wide Chromed Steel Glockenspiel Bars
- ◆ Solid hardwood Boxes, Glued & Screwed together for durability
- ◆ Heavy Duty Metal Metal Pegs and solid neoprene rubber support bars
- ◆ Bars precisely tuned to A-440
- ◆ Standard Xylophones and Metallophones include FREE side storage box for extra bars
