

The 26th Annual EPC Educational Vendor Fair

Friday, July 31, 2015

Wright State University Nutter Center

Please join us for this free seminar

Executive Function Skills: Critical Components for College and Career Success

By Mike Ferris

A brief introduction to executive function skills: What they are, why they're important, and what brain research tells us about today's media-savvy students. The purpose is to equip teachers to help develop these skills among the students for whom they're responsible.

Target Group: Classroom Teachers, Special Education Teachers, RTI Coordinators and administrators interested in the topic.

Certificates will be given to those that attend so you may submit on your own for CEU's

You are invited to also attend the EPC Vendor Fair on the 1st floor. Go to the show floor and visit educational vendor booths, sample new items and more. Prize drawings throughout the day. This event and seminar is free. No charge to attend and free parking.

This seminar is free to attend through your school district's membership with the Southwestern Ohio Educational Purchasing Council (EPC). Please go to www.epcschools.org/VendorFair.html to register. We will provide participation certificates to those that provide their information and attend the seminar.

Seminar Location: Wright State University's Nutter Center, Berry Room 3
3640 Colonel Glenn Hwy, Fairborn OH 45324

Seminar Date/Time: Friday, July 31st
Seminar time 10:30 am – 11:30 am, Educational Vendor Fair is 9:00 am–2:00 pm